

AWARDS

The Envy Awards: Our salute to those other notable film moments

The Envelope brings you The Envy Awards for those special film moments no one else noticed. (Daniel Sulzberg/For The Times.)

By RANDEE DAWN

APRIL 14, 2021 6 AM PT

From actors to production designers to screenwriters to directors, everyone seems to have a place at the Academy Awards. But that doesn't mean all the greatest moments from this past year's films are getting their moment in the sun. The Envelope is here to change that with the 2021 Envy Awards — prizes handed out to some of the most moving or incredible moments in film from this awards season, along with a couple of the real head-scratchers (in our humble opinions). But be warned, there are spoilers ahead. Now get out your popcorn, 'cause it's awards time!

Longest Intra-Movie Teaser

“The Trial of the Chicago 7”

“Chicago 7” is a riveting, sometimes absurdist film about how justice can be perverted, and a classic Aaron Sorkin-esque interweaving of dialogue and politics. We wish they'd shot a second movie simultaneously about Black Panther Bobby Seale's courtroom experience. He's present but stuck in jail (and eventually bound and gagged), which means his incredible story goes sadly unfleshed out. That's the film we're hoping Sorkin — or someone — makes next.

Best Biological Clock Delay Incentive Award

Tie: “Never Rarely Sometimes Always,” “Pieces of a Woman”

ADVERTISEMENT

It's hard to say which pregnancy-as-tragedy film was most likely to prevent future pregnancies, so we'll give it to both of them. "Never Rarely Sometimes Always" is a hard watch from moment one and gets even harder once it's revealed that the title comes from an intake form at Planned Parenthood, where our young pregnant heroine is hoping to secure an abortion. Then there's the 20-plus-minute unbroken-take birthing scene in "Pieces of a Woman," unstinting in its minute depiction of a delivery gone wrong. Babies may be a joy, but the road to them can be plagued with true terror — and these films are warning flags all along the route.

Most Devastating Use of an Emoticon

Winky-face, "Promising Young Woman"

Without giving anything away, the last image in "Woman" is a spot-on dark emoticon on delayed send that arrives in Bo Burnham's character's phone: a winky-face that's anything but cute. It's a loud dun-dun in the "Law & Order" sense that lets us know that although the sender may be gone, she will never be forgotten. And vengeance is hers.

Reality Intrudes Special Mention

Rudy Giuliani, "Borat Subsequent Moviefilm"

ADVERTISEMENT

Admittedly, the former presidential advisor had a lot of great absurdist performances in the waning days of the 45th presidency — including one held in front of a landscaping service — but on camera, Giuliani’s stint in “Borat,” in which he finishes an interview then appears to put the moves on his interviewer, was the lowest high point of the year for him. And that’s saying something.

Best Use of Height in a Chase Sequence

“Tenet”

There’s a lot to admire, dislike and be downright confused about in “Tenet,” but one thing that’s clear from the start is that at 6 feet 3, Elizabeth Debicki is a willowy gazelle of a woman. And such height means she gets to survive: While bound in the back of a speeding SUV, she’s able to fling her leg into the driver’s seat to unlock the door to make her escape. It’s a bonkers sequence that works because Debicki gets to display her full range of assets. Here’s to tall women!

Out of Sight, Out of Mind Award

“The Invisible Man”

ADVERTISEMENT

Filled with terrific jump scares and terrifying scenes in which we can't even see the terror, we're left wondering how Invisible Dude — who must get from his out-of-town home into San Francisco while driving in his car while invisible — managed not to get pulled over at some point. Self-driving cars may exist, but this is probably pushing the limits.

Least Well-Thought-Out Happy Ending

“The Midnight Sky”

We're not scientists, but we're reasonably sure repopulating the human race with three people — which is all that's left at the end of “Sky,” and one of them isn't even born yet — is not going to happen. Unless there's a hidden colony of humans on planet K23, or the spaceship Aether is packed with fertilized embryos that can be born via artificial uterus (paging “Raised by Wolves”), the human race is done for in about 50 years, as life has been wiped out. We're thrilled George Clooney's earthbound scientist got his heart right with his daughter in the end, but, well, so long humanity.

AWARDS

MOVIES

OSCARS

From the Emmys to the Oscars.

Get our revamped Envelope newsletter for exclusive awards season coverage, behind-the-scenes insights and columnist Glenn Whipp's commentary.

Enter email address

SIGN ME UP

You may occasionally receive promotional content from the Los Angeles Times.

---

MORE FROM THE LOS ANGELES TIMES

---

AWARDS

Four first-timers adjust to the words 'Academy Award nominee'

April 14, 2021

---

AWARDS

'The Mole Agent' goes in search of elder abuse but finds a charming portrait of aging

April 14, 2021

---

AWARDS

Positive movement for female directors

April 14, 2021

---

AWARDS

How did they create ‘Mulan’s’ massive Imperial City? Think giant digital Lego kit

April 14, 2021

---

SUBSCRIBERS ARE READING

ENTERTAINMENT & ARTS

Tiny houses and shipping containers may help homeless people in L.A. Are they humane?

CALIFORNIA

Paul Flores killed Kristin Smart in dorm room during attempted rape, DA says. LAPD investigated local cases

MOVIES

‘I can’t imagine Hollywood without the ArcLight.’ Filmmakers explain why the loss matters

CALIFORNIA

UC explains admissions decisions in a record application year of much heartbreak, some joy

ENTERTAINMENT & ARTS

Column: The UC system is one of the best and worst parts of living in California

---

LATEST AWARDS >

---

AWARDS

Transforming Viola Davis into Ma Rainey meant staying away from 'pretty'

April 13, 2021

---

AWARDS

Oscar producers feeling good about their show. 'It's about the emotion ... the energy.'

April 13, 2021

---

MOVIES

'Nomadland' is the Oscars frontrunner. But its depiction of Amazon has stirred controversy

April 13, 2021

---

COMPANY TOWN

Awards shows are struggling to draw TV audiences. Should the Oscars be worried?

April 13, 2021

---

AWARDS

Two strangers come together to make the personal feel universal with 'Minari'

April 12, 2021

---

eNewspaper

Coupons

Find/Post Jobs

Place an Ad

Media Kit: Why the L. A. Times?

Bestcovery

Subscribe for unlimited access

Follow Us

Copyright © 2021, Los Angeles Times | Terms of Service | Privacy Policy | CA Notice of Collection | Do Not Sell My Personal Information